

Alpkit Kraku ▶

What weighs less than six fifty pence coins and can serve up a feast? The 45g Kraku is possibly the lightest gas stove money can buy and puts out 2600W of power – easily enough to rustle up a meal when you reach the summit or settle down to await sunrise. Superbly made, it folds into a tiny bundle to make it easy to pack.

Guide price £25
alpkit.com

Salomon XA Pro 3D ▼

Already enjoying near cult status with trail runners and people who enjoy lightweight speed hiking jaunts into the great outdoors, the latest version of the XA Pro 3D has been made even better this year. Featuring a new 3D Advanced Chassis to make it even more stable and responsive on rough ground, and with improved grip and durability, this is certain to be on the feet of thousands of people in the hills.

Guide price £100
cotswoldoutdoor.com

GEARING UP

Canada Goose Hybridge Lite Hoody ▼

The Hybridge Lite Hoody draws upon Canada Goose's expertise in producing down garments while maintaining high levels of flexibility. Weighing around 200g, it is ideal for active location adventures. It has upper Napoleon chest pockets and Stretch Lycra hood edge and cuff binding. It packs into its own pocket.

Guide price £550
canada-goose.com

Braun Splash Camera Bag ▲

If you enjoy pushing the limits when it comes to challenging conditions and locations, the Braun Splash Camera Bag could quickly become a best friend. Made from 500D PVC, it is tough enough to withstand bumps and scrapes and has a removable cushioned interior to reduce the impact on your equipment. The roll and clip closure system will keep sand, dust, dirt and water at bay.

Guide price £30
kenro.co.uk

Nikon D3300 ▼

With a 24.2MP CMOS sensor, native ISO up to 12800, the superb Nikon EXPEED 4 image processor and continuous shooting at five frames per second, it is hard to comprehend that this is the entry level camera in Nikon DSLR range. Professionals would have killed for these same specifications not long ago, even ten times the price. The D3300 will certainly perform for you, no matter what level your photography is at.

Guide price £499.99 (body only)
nikon.co.uk

